HOLIDAY MEANS GENERAL SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS

Soldier Dead to be Fittingly Remembered Memorial Day

LOCAL COMPANY ASSISTS

Charleroi Brigade Will go to Brownsville to Assist in Exercises

Memorial Day will generally be regarded as a holiday in Charleroi, although there will be no special observance of the day here. Most of the stores will be closed at least a part of the day and all the banks will observe the holiday. The postoffice will be open two hours in the morning and one hour in the evening. The Imperial Bottle works and the Hussy Binns Shovel works will be closed.

The Charleroi Brigade, under the captaincy of R. Dale Jolliffs, will go to Brownsville, where there will be a big demonstration. They will participate in the morning and afternoon parades. A number of people from here will accompany the brigade. New uniforms ordered some time ago have just arrived and will be worn by members of the company tomorrow. Celebrations will be held by G. A. R. posts at Monongahela and at Belle Vernon.

Local amusement will be provided by two church league ball games, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. The schedule for these is the Christians and Baptists in the forenoon and the Lutherans and Methodists in the afternoon.

Eldora park will provide special entertainment for visitors in the way of balloon assensions, afternoon and evening, with dancing and other amusements.

"Joe" Mason Captain of Team Representing State College Grads

On Tuesday June 13, at State College will be played the annual game between the Alumni and Varsity nines, and a great struggle is looked forward to this year. Joe Mason of Charleroi has been appointed captain of the Alumni team and he will have no trouble in getting together a splendid lineup, composed of such players as "Irish" McIlveen '07, "Birdie" Cree '08, "Larry" Vorhis '10, Bob Coulson ex-1910, "Bull" McCleary '10, "Paddy" Lynch '10, "Cal" Moorhead '09, "Heff" Hirsman '10, "Cy" Mitinger '09, "Stones" Haverstick '08, "Bud" Sharpe '04, Earle Hewitt '04, and many others. ## BIG CHOIR PICNICS AT LOCAL PARK

Mendelssohn Singers Have Enjoyable Time at Eldora

BASSOS BEAT THE TENORS

One of the most joyous and successful outings of the season thus far at Eldora Park was the annual outing of the Mendelssohn Male Choir of Pittsburg, Saturday afternoon. The excursion arrived over the Pittsburg Railways line in special cars about 3 o'clock and the balance of the afternoon and evening was devoted to sports and merry-making.

About 60 members of the choir and their friends were present. A program os sports was pulled off on the Eldora baseball ground on the hill above the park. This included races and other athletic events, for which prizes were awarded the winners. A feature was the annual ball game between the bass and tenor singers of the choir, in which the former won by a score of 23 to 1. After the game and sports lunch was served in the restaurant building of the park. The repast was most bountiful and was nicely served by a corps of waiters brought along for the occasion. Afterward the choir, under direction of Conductor Ernest Lunt, sang several selections at the vaudeville stage, and this open air concert was highly enjoyed by the Saturday

MILITARY RITES AT DE VINEY FUNERAL

Taps Sounded by Veterans of Late Spanish-American War for Deceased Comrade Buried Sunday

MEMBERS OF TENTH REGIMENT ATTEND IN BODY

With full military rites and attended by Spanish-American war veterans from all over the country, the funeral of Frank "Kid" DeViney was held at Belle Vernon Sunday afternoon. It was one of the largest funerals ever held in this vicinity. Members of Company A., Tenth Regiment, of which DeViney was a member, attended in a body. Taps were sounded by Harry Loutitt, of Monongahela, a member of the Tenth, N. G. P., and the bugler of William McKinley Post No. 3, American Veterans of Foreign Service. The pall bearers were former Colonel James E. Barnett of Washington, Sheriff Judd Bruff of Allegheny county, Senator Archie Powell of Allegheny county, and Edward Bolle, clerk of courts in Beaver county.

A marker was placed on the grave by the William McKinley Post, No. 3 A squad of veterans, composing the Tenth firing squad, fired a final volley over the grave.

Many Charleroi peaple attended the funeral. Interment was in the Belle Vernon cemetery.

CHILDREN REMOVED TO COUNTY HOME

Local Junvenile Court Committee Provides for Little Ones

Through the efforts of Mrs Tener, the youngest child, an infant, will be taken to the Pittsburg Hospital for Children and later placed in the Home for Crippled Children.

Big Saturday Night Crowd.

Saturday being pay day at the mines and most of the mills along the river, a big shopping crowd was in town in the evening. All the stores and business places did a thriving trade, and the banks, which keep open Saturday nights for an hour, also materially increased their deposits.

INDEPENDENTS WIN FROM THE LYCEUM

Scissors McIllvaine's Aggregation Pulls One Over on Pittsburg Bunch

John "Scissors" McIlvaine's Charleroi Independent team was too much for the Pittsburg Lyceum aggregation Saturday and the result was that the visitors went home feeling decidly putout. The score was 12 to 4. One thing wrong was that McIlvaine's cohorts got too many hits to please the other folks. Thirteen was the number. Errors were not so promiscuous but they were frequent enough to help along matters somewhat.

J. Mason and Guder scored in first inning. Playing the game at all times and taking advantage of the visitors misplays aided considerably. McIlvaine astonished everybody by getting a start on his batting average in the second and subsequently scored. Vernom also scored. Haywood got a three baser in the third and scored on an error, then Charles Mason got a base , stole second and went third on an error, scoring on an out. J. Mason and Guder again got two in the fourth Four hits was the reason. Four runs completed the base running in the eighth. Scores were made then by J. Mason, Guder, Haywood and C. Mason.

The visitors got three in the fifth on two hits, a base on balls and an error, and one in the ninth on a fielder's

PALEFACE HEAP BOTHER CHIEF

Medicine Man No Like Um Questions So Print Card---Can Sling English Too

Chief Red Wing, of the tribe of Milicetes, and a mighty man in valor from appearances, is attracting attention today at the Piper Bros. pharmacy. The chief is here to advertise some kind of medicine, and not to answer questions, thank you. There's nothing but [illegible] Milicetes Indian [illegible] coursing through the veins of Chief Red Wing. He came from Maine and has been old enough to vote since three years back. He can sling the English lingo like a baseball writer and can speil the Indian talk enough to make other big chiefs sit up and take notice. Yet he did not graduate at Carlisle Indian school. The chief has a printed sign which he will show to anyone for information, but he's strictly business-like and truly up-to-date, so he prefers not to talk. He has a good display of beads, saddles and other Indian curios.

BLACK DIAMOND BREAKS RECORD

Output Heavy At Big Mine of Monongahela River Coal Company

All records for one day's production were broken at the Black Diamond mine Friday when 1,315 tons of coal were brought out, or 1,973 tons of run of mine. Superintendent J. B. O'Hara made the record without much extra effort. The previous high run was 1,200 tons.

TWO SMALL BOYS ARE DROWNED

Two small boys, Fred Isger, son of Mr and Mrs. A. J. Isger, a well known engineer on the P. V. & C. and George Pershing, son of Mr. and Mrs B. M. Perching of Elrama, both former residents of Monongahela were drowned in the Monongahela river Saturday while bathing. Their bodies were recovered shortly afterward.

No Issue of Mail.

COUNCIL TO OPEN BIDS FOR NEW KIND OF TREES

Important Matters to be Considerd at Meeting Tonight

CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED

Citizens Asked to be Present --Business Men's Association Has Committee

Council will hold a special meeting tonight to consider among other things a number of bids from nursery firms for furnishing trees to people here to replace Carolina poplars. In this work council will co-operate with a committee consisting of W. D. Pollock and William Kirk, appointed from the Business Men's Association. Citizens are invited to attend the meeting.

It was stated some time ago that trees of a different kind from the sewer-destroying Carolina poplars could be secured at half or less than half the retail price, if purchased in bulk. Accordingly bids have been received on different kinds of trees. Other towns where it has been necessary to dig out the Carolina poplars and replace with another kind, have found the Norway Pine a good tree and have largely adopted it.

The Play Grounds Committee has selected a man for the position of instructor and council will be asked to ratify the choice tonight. Other important business is expected to come up.

Will Initiate a Large Class

Supreme Offciers of L.C.B.A. Coming Thursday to Confer Rites

Miss Kate Mahoney, Supreme President of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association accompanied by other Supreme officers will be here Thursday evening, June 1, to initiate a class of 100 members. The initiation will be held in the Monessen Opera House. St. Jeromes' Branch, No. 782 of Charleroi, expects to have a large number in the class. Further particulars of the inititation, which will be quite an important event, will be announced later by those in charge locally.

VALLEY LEAGUE TO OPEN

Final Meeting Held in Charleroi to Formulate Circuit

NEW CLUB IS ADMITTED

At a meeting of the Monongahela Valley Baseball league Sunday afternoon at the Walfred Hotel, arrangements were made to open the league season on Decoration Day. Two teams of the four composing the circuit will play. A double header will be the attraction between Brownsville and Belle Vernon at Belle Vernon.

Brownsville was admitted to the league Sunday, George Sherwin representing that town. Monessen and Donora teams are entered, and it is hoped to get Monongahela and Fayette City.

KIRK AND CLARK HAVE BIG SALE

Kirk & Clark's sale of the Ryan bankrupt stock, which opened Saturday, was a record breaker. This popular department store has had some big sales in the past but Saturday's record surpassed them all and the store did the largest single day's business in its history. Forty-two sale girls were employed and even this large force was overwhelmed at times in trying to take care of the crowds of patrons who had been attracted to the sale. A big white sale starts Wednesday.

Suffering From Hot Weather

Shade Trees Popular on Sunday---Mercury Rises to Lofty Position

People sweltered yesterday from the heat, and after the majority had attended church services the balance of the day was spent in an endeavor to keep cool. Hundreds flocked to Eldora park, where leafy shade and cool breezes afforded a delightful retreat. Others sought various shady retreats or tried to tolerate the temperature in their homes by sitting on the back stoop minus superfluous clothing, and shifting to the front veranda and vice versa as Old Sol moved onward in his course, shedding his piercing rays on the righteous and unrighteous alike. Soda fountains and ice cream establishments helped to make existence more tolerable, while the constant creaking of pump handles in the resident districts told of the thirst that was other than alcoholic.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Tomorrow the business and social world takes a holiday in memory of the soldier dead of the nation. To some it is a day of solemn import, fraught with sad memories and tender recollections; to others—and the great majority, perhaps—it is a day for care free, holiday recreation, in which the sentimet that inspires the observance has little part. This however, should not detract from the holiday, as it is the province of human nature to rejoice, rather than to mourn.

With due respect to the solemnity of the occasion, it is not sacriligious for the people who take a holiday on Memorial Day to devote their leisure to pleasure and recreation. There is duty to the living as well as to the dead, and it was the joyous, happy young manhood of half a century ago that marched to the front and arrayed themselves in line of battle in defence of Old Glory in upholding the cause of human rights. The joyous freedom which had been the life of the people was the inspiration of the patriotism that flamed up when National existence was threatened. It is today the basic motive of patriotism, and to smother this sentiment is to breed discontent, rebellion and anarchy.

Therefore in the interests of patriotism, love of home, country and National honor, let all who can enjoy the Memorial Day holiday, keeping in mind the tribute of respect paid the heroes who stood in the breach when their services were needed to preserve the liberties we enjoy today.

HAS MADE GOOD.

Pennsylvania has now had more than four months of Governor John K. Tener. By his work in that period he must be judged. He has gone through what is certain to be the severest test of his administration and no fair man or women either will charge that he has not been faithful to his every trust and that he has not made good in every particular.

Governor Tener did not get all he wanted from the Legislature just adjourned last week. He had made pledges to get some few things which he was unable to get. He fought to the last ditch for the redemption of all his pledges. He forced from the Legislature enough to convince his critics that he was deadly in earnest in his every effort and that the unredeemed pledges simply mark defeats which were more painful to him personally than to his constituents.

The Republican party in Pennsylvania has made good to the people by electing Governir Tener and Governor Tener has made good to the people by acting as their servant and endeavoring to give to the people what he earnestly believed they wanted.

There will be comparatively little State politics for many months. During the political recess the firm determination of Governor Tener to redeem all his campaign pledges will be apparent to all the people and his traducers should hide their heads in shame. The Republican party of Pennsylvania was never in better shape than it is today, and Governor Tener is one of its most substantial props.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Days of heart-rending suffering, nights of ceasless vigil to ever be in preparation for the enemy's advances battles in which thousands were killed and wounded, hasty marches participated in by a heavy moving army, and ever recurring instances of hard army life, are described in the diary of Thomas H. Cline, of Brownsville, a survivor of the 85th Regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, which fought nobly during practically the entire Civil War. The diary is now owned and highly treasured by a daughter of Mr. Cline, who is still living at Brownsville. It is probably the only narrative in existance kept by a surviving member of the company.

Enlisting in Capt. Wilkinson's company known as Company C, September 11, 1861, Private Cline served until August, 1864, when he sustained a grievous wound in his hand. Being taken to a hospital in Philadelphia he remained there for months, complications developing from the wound, which was feared would cause his death. Early in the spring of 1865, when he was discharged from the hospital to come home before returning to the seat of war, he learned that the terrible destruction was about over; that the fire of the Confederacy had become extinguished with recent defeats. He never went back, for the war ended while he was recovering from his wound. General Lee surrendered to General Grant and the disrupted republic was again solidly united with the Stars and Stripes still the insignia of freedom.

It looked easy to be a soldier when Private Cline enlisted. Nobody in the Northern states ever thought for a moment that the Confederacy would last but a few weeks. Volunteers were called for and men hastened to the front leaving their sorrowing wives and mothers to get along as best they could. The few weeks dragged into months and the Confederacy still had the then considered bumptious impertinence to exist. It was in the first few months of war, in fact just after the battle of Bull Run, that Private Cline enlisted. According to his diary the company after paying a farewell visit to Brownsville returned to Uniontown and left that place for the seat of war.

Doing nothing practically until the hard winter of 1861 set in the soldiers had an easy life. They were then in McClellan's "Army of the Potomac." One record of January 17,1862 in Private Cline's diary is: "We were paid off for the first time. Toward the latter part of our stay the weather was ugly. We had seven deaths. All except the waggoners and guards had easy times. We lived in plenty and were comfortable. Made a nice showing."

It was not until about April or May that the company began to see war as war is. Williamsburg was the first fight. This was serious, and a number were injured. An entry of May 24 is as follows: "Moved on a scout under General Nagle. Very wet and muddy pickets. Commenced fighting and were ordered to support a battery which played well upon the enemy. Killed 60 rebels. Several of our men wounded."

May 31 marked the battle of Fair Oaks. Private Cline was preparing his diary when this fight started, as is evidenced by the following: "Parties sent out to slash timber and work redoubt. About now two balls came over our camp. The 103rd went to support the pickets. The rest of us got out in quick time. Rebels drove us back and took possession of our camp. We fell back about two miles. Lost nearly 100 men in all. The enemy checked."

Next day the tide turned and the enemy was in turn driven back. The entry for June 1 is: "Our men renewed the attack, drove the enemy and took back the old ground. The regiment at work on rifle pits. In afternoon moved back and camped near the cross roads. A panic at night. A funny time." At the battle of Fair Oaks the Federal army was surprised. Partly in desperation to recover these they did some of the best fighting on the second day of the battle.

Nearly every day after the Battle of Fair Oaks during the next few months there was fighting. The next winter the soldiers had it hard. On Christmas Day, 1862 the following entry tells conditions: "Christmas. Had nothing for breakfast. About noon secured some bread and beef and had a feast."

The first of 1863 the company was in very little hard fighting. In July there were some serious engagements. An entry of July 18 follows: "The monitors and ironside engaged the enemy. Our infantry made assault on Fort Wagner. Were repulsed with heavy loss." Part of the entry for the following day is: "The day was spent in bringing in the dead and dying and the less wounded from Provost Guard." This was in North Carolina. An enty of August 22 is: "Had inspection in the morning. The regiment went to the front in the evening. Two men killed and several wounded of the regiment. I was shocked by a shot from Wagner. Had to come to camp." September 5, the diary reads:" There were 100 men detained from our regiment, 100 from the 100th New York Volunteers and 100 from the third Massachusetts Volunteers to charge Battery Gregg and spike her guns. The night was clear and the expedition failed." On September 7 both Fort Gregg and Fort Wagner were taken.

The final entry is December 22, 1863. It is: "Went on guard in the morning." During the following months until he was injured Private Cline was in the midst of some of the hardest fighting ever engaged in by the Army of the Potomac. At Deep Bottom on August 14 while in the front rank and center of the army he was wounded. By this time the ranks of Company C had been depleted until the total number in it was 30. At Deep Bottom, directly facing the enemy it got the full force of the firing. Few men came out whole from the engagement.

MUSICAL MOUNTAINS.

Singing Cliffs In the Pyrenees and Roaring Sands In Hawaii.

In certain parts of the world are mountains and hills which are said by the natives to sing. In the Pyrenees certain cliffs emit plaintive sounds resembling the strains of a harp. Two other cliffs in the same chain are called the "snorers." When the wind is in the southwest they send forth a peculiar sound not altogether musical. The faces of these cliffs are marked by deep gullies, open in front, which may be compared to the pipes of an organ. At certain times a stratum of air, held between the cliffs and bordering trees, closes the openings while the wind blows freely between through the gullies, or organ pipes, behind; hence the music that is heard.

At the confluence of the Orinoco and the Rio Meta are granite cliffs which sing at sunrise. Humboldt refers to the phenomenon as the musical stones of the Orinoco. The music is caused by the rush of the expanding air through fissures partly closed by mica.

Many more examples might be cited to show that nature makes use of principles which have been adopted by man in the creation of musical sounds. Nor are the musical sounds of nature confined to rocks, mountains and hills, for in Hawaii is a sand bank fifty feet high which, when the hand is moved about in the loose sand, produces a sound like that of a melodeon. It is said that if the observer slides down the bank on his back, dragging both hands in the sand, the sound becomes as loud as faint thunder.—Harper's Weekly.

AN ILL MATED PAIR.

Wide Apart In Temperament Were Thomas and Jane Carlyle.

That the Carlyles were an ill assorted couple no one could deny. She was a highly strung, nervous woman, very quick, able and impatient, disappointed with her married life and her position, jealous of the admiration which Carlyle received at the hands of all his admirers, especially of one or two women, whom she found very unsympathetic.

That Carlyle adored her there is little doubt. He loved her with all the rough, passionate power of his nature, but he was a peasant in manner and character and lacking in all the little outward signs of devotion and affection which so many women exact and the absence of which they resent most bitterly.

Mrs. Carlyle found herself tied to an irritable genius who, sensitive at every point, deeply devoted to her, but absolutely incapable of translating that love into the language which she craved and longed for. I remember her once saying to me in a bitter way, "My dear, whatever you do, never marry a philosopher," and that was the key to the enigma—the woman always hungering for proofs of the devotion in which the whole of her daily life was wanting.—From Lady St. Heller's "Memories."

Physiognomy Not Reliable.

I am a profound disbeliever in physiognomy. Features are false witnesses. Stupidity frequently wears a mask of intelligence. I know business men who look like poets and poets who look like business men. Men of genius invariably look like idiots, and if you pick out the man who looks most eminent in a party you are sure to find he is a nobody. I always distrust men who look magnificent. Nature is a stingy creature. She seldom gives a man the double gift of being great and looking great. She took care to lame Byron and deform Pope and disfigure Johnson. But the crowning example of her jealous parsimony is Shakespeare. I have always been disappointed with Shakespeare's face. It does not live up to his poetry. It is dull, heavy and commonplace.—

Meteoric Showers.

How many know that the earth is getting larger each year from the fall of meteoric matter on its surface and that such matter is of no small weight? One hundred tons a day is the estimate made by Young. This, he says, would make a layer one inch thick over the entire earth in 1,000,000,000 years if we assume this meteoric matter to be three times as heavy as water. But another effect has to take place at the same time. As the earth is getting larger the force of gravity gets larger, and we are being attracted with more force toward the sun. But the centrifugal force keeping us away from the sun gets much greater, too, and, in fact, more so than the sun's gravity, the result being that we are gradually increasing our distance from the glowing orb.—New York Tribune.

A Crazy Spell.

The opera was "Trovatore."

Though I no more may hold thee,
Yet is thy name a spell,

sang the basso to the prima donna. And it was. Her name was Sophronia Czechilinskiwicz.—Judge's Library.

Stung!

"I would like to exchange this five dollar opera bag for a five dollar chafing dish."

"Sorry, miss, but those opera bags have been marked down to $3.98."—Washington Herald.

The Peculiar Sand Fly.

The sand fly is perfectly harmless. It does not bite. It has no sting. It cannot even eat. All it can do is to flit about for a few hours, enjoy the light of day or the glare of an electric lamp. The sand fly is known to scientists familiarly as the May fly. In scientific terms it is called ephemerida. This name is taken from the Greek word ephemeros, which means lasting only for a day. To the scientists the sand fly is one of the most interesting and beautiful of insects. The fly lives but a day at most, but before it sees the light it has lived from one to three years under the water in the form of what the scientists call a nymph. The nymph can both walk and swim. As it grows it molts, and after about the ninth molt tiny wings appear on its thorax. These grow larger until the insect comes forth from the water a sand fly. It then has but one duty—to lay its eggs. This done, the sand fly zigzags through the air until its brief life is ended.

Not In That Class.

A Cleveland young woman has a ten-year-old brother who is wise beyond his years and is likely to crop out in new places at the most unexpected times. The other night the anxious suitor called on his inamorata, arriving at her domicile a little before he was expected. She was not ready to make her appearance, and the duty of entertaining the caller devolved upon the little brother.

"Well, Bobby," began the young man in an effort to make conversation and at the same time to put his involuntary host at his ease, "does your sister think that I am calling at this house oftener than I am welcome?"

The child looked keenly at the caller.

"Nothing doing," he said. "Do you think I'm one of these fresh kids you read about in the funny papers? There ain't going to be no embarrassing answer this time." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Missionary a Puzzle.

To the untutored Chinamen the presence of the missionary is a puzzle. They simply cannot imagine human beings exiling themselves from their native land for the love of men on the other side of the globe. So they frame sundry theories to explain the thing to themselves. One theory is that the missionaries are secret political agents bent on gaining an influence over the Chinese and then swaying them to the advantage of their respective governments. Only of late have the natives come to realize that the strangers are not sent by their governments, but by religious groups. According to another theory, China is so excellent and renowned that the red haired barbarians come to live there for the mere pleasure of it. As for their self denying works of benevolence, these are supposed to be prompted by the desire to acquire merit.—Century.

Force Yourself to Be Well.

"Plant your feet firmly and squarely on the ground, throw back your shoulders, fold your arms and affirm in most emphatic terms that you are strong, healthy and well. Do this for a few minutes every evening, and, even if this is not how you actually feel, maintain by your physical and mental attitude that it is your condition, and you will soon find that it becomes so and that you are not really telling lies." This was the advice given by Dr. J. Stenson Hooker in a lecture on "Posturing and Posing For Health" at the simple life conference and exhibition in London. "It is wonderful to what extent our state of health can be altered in this way," Dr. Hooker added. "It stirs up the currents of feeling which act on the nerves. These act on the blood vessels, and thus the whole system is improved, and we become different beings."

Could, but Would He?

"I have called," said the young man, "to ask for your daughter's hand in marriage."

"Can you support her in the style she has been accustomed to?"

"Yes," answered the young man.

"But will you?" demanded her father, who was already supporting two sons in-law.—Detroit Free Press.

QUAINT MARRIAGE NOTICE.

William Cullen Bryant Broke the News Gently to His Mother.

The following letter from William Cullen Bryant to his mother, quoted by Professor Chubb in "Stories of Authors," indicates that the author of "Thanatopsis" could enjoy his little joke on occasion:

"Dear Mother—I hasten to send you the melancholy intelligence of what has lately happened to me. Early on the evening of the eleventh day of the present month I was at a neighboring house in this village. Several people of both sexes were assembled in one of the apartments, and three or four others, with myself, were in another. At last came in a little elderly gentleman, pale, thin, with a solemn countenance, pleuritic voice, hooked nose and hollow eyes. It was not long before we were summoned to attend in the apartment where he and the rest of the company were gathered. We went in and took our seats. The little elderly gentleman with the hook nose prayed, and we all stood up. When he had finished most of us sat down. The gentleman with the hooked nose then muttered certain cabalistic expressions, which I was too much frightened to remember, but I recollect that at the conclusion I was given to understand that I was married to a young lady of the name of Frances Fairchild, whom I perceived standing by my side and whom I hope in the course of a few months to have the pleasure of introducing to you as your daughter-in-law, which is a matter of some interest to the poor girl, who has neither father nor mother in the world."

SHIELDED THE LADY.

A Tactful Head Waiter Balked an Offensive Hotel Guest.

To illustrate an incident that occurred in a hotel uptown the other night, where, if you are not known, you have to produce some sort of patent of absolute respectability, construct a rectangle, lettering the imaginary diagonal corners A, B, C and D:

A represents a solitary male person dining. B represents a comely person of the opposite sex seated at another table with a party. C represents a head waiter and D a group of the unemployed waiters. Let the line AB represent an admiring look that travels continuously. BA represents a look of annoyance. CA and CB are comprehending glances directed by the head waiter.

The point C moves toward D, making a triangle. After a whispered direction a figure which may be termed O, because it represents a particularly rotund waiter, moves from the point D until it reaches a point on the line AB. O moves back to position.

A finds that his ogle stops at O, which he cannot see through, and calls O to take an order. Thereupon C motions toward D, when another waiter, traveling on the line DA, effects a junction with A and goes off at a tangent. A cranes his neck, stretching to one side or the other, but it cannot get past O. The result is that A finally sees what is up, finishes his coffee in sheepish disgust and leaves the room. —New York Sun.

Astrology With Risks.

Formerly they had rough and ready modes of testing claims to supernatural powers.

"Dost thou know where thou wilt pass Christmas?" asked Henry VII. of an astrologer. He could not tell.

Whereupon the king's grace, which did love a merry jest, made answer, "Then I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou wilt spend Christmas in prison."

John Galeazzo, duke of Milan, is said to have made even merrier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early.

"And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the prophet.

"My lord, my star promises me a long life."

"Never trust to your star, man; you are to be hanged today," and the duke took care that his own prediction should be fulfilled.

Killing One Fly.

Every fly begins as an egg deposited in some kind of organic filth. It hatches into a tiny maggot within a few hours, begins to feed and grow, completes its growth and comes out as a perfect fly in possibly ten days. It then requires at least fourteen days to mature its first batch of eggs, and it may live to mature and deposit at least six layings, of from 120 to 150 eggs each. This means that in killing one fly we may be preventing the hatching of nearly a thousand others.—Youth's Companion.

Two Kinds of Curiosity.

Philanthropic Visitor (to jailbird)—My friend, may I ask what it was that brought you here? Jailbird—The very same thing that brought you here—the desire to poke my nose into other people's business, only I used generally to go in by way of the basement window.—Exchange.

Mean.

Miss Mugley—I always try to retire before midnight. I don't like to miss my beauty sleep. Miss Peppley—You really should try harder. You certainly don't get enough of it.

Two Sides.

Willis—Why don't you go to church? Gillis—Too far. Why don't you go? Willis—We live next door to one, and I hate to get all dressed up just to go that little way.—Puck.

By the work one knows the workmen.—La Fontaine.

Urban got his ankle badly turned Saturday in the fouth when he slid into second.

Haywood, a brother of Pete Haywood, had a batting average of 800. My, but he can hit.

"Scissors" McIlvaine got his second hit of the season Saturday. He was much elated over the fact and may have himself at the head of the batting list.

There wasn't the least shadow of a doubt but what the matter was that Charleroi was too fast for the Lyceum.

The Mendelsohn Male Choir, which is at the head of all musical organizations in Pittsburg, is composed of the best professional singers of the various church choirs of Pittsburg. These are highly trained as a separate organization, and several times a year they give concerts in company with some of the leading orchestras of the country, such as Damrosch, the Boston Symphony and other leading musical organizations. C. J. Braun, Jr., is president of the choir, Ernest Lunt conductor, and C. W. McGhee, secretary and treasurer. The company and their guests were highly pleased with the outing, and voted Eldora Park a most enjoyable resort.

How He Got the Moon.

John Henry Maedler, the astronomer, whose favorite study was the moon, having learned that Frau Witte, the wife of the state councilor, owned a wonderful model of his pet luminary, spent years trying to gain possession of it. As her husband was living, he could not marry the owner of the model, so he married her daughter, and at the death of his mother-in-law the coveted moon became his.

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground

"'Here, corporal,' said he; 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

The Bishop's Opinion.

"The late Bishop Whitaker," said a Philadelphia clergyman, "had very little sympathy with ultra high church leaning. A young divine once said to him at a Lenten lecture, 'Bishop, suppose I should burn a few pastilles during the service, do you think anything would happen?'

"Bishop Whitaker smiled dryly, and, passing his hand down his white beard, he answered:

"'A good deal would happen, my young friend. Your congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and it's more than likely that you yourself would go up in smoke.'"

The Family Cat.

"Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a redhot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."

BIG CHOIR PICNICS AT LOCAL PARK

BASSOS BEAT THE TENORS

One of the most joyous and successful outings of the season thus far at Eldora Park was the annual outing of the Mendelssohn Male Choir of Pittsburg, Saturday afternoon. The excursion arrived over the Pittsburg Railways line in special cars about 3 o'clock and the balance of the afternoon and evening was devoted to sports and merry-making.

About 60 members of the choir and their friends were present. A program os sports was pulled off on the Eldora baseball ground on the hill above the park. This included races and other athletic events, for which prizes were awarded the winners. A feature was the annual ball game between the bass and tenor singers of the choir, in which the former won by a score of 23 to 1. After the game and sports lunch was served in the restaurant building of the park. The repast was most bountiful and was nicely served by a corps of waiters brought along for the occasion. Afterward the choir, under direction of Conductor Ernest Lunt, sang several selections at the vaudeville stage, and this open air concert was highly enjoyed by the Saturday

Scissors McIlvaine's Aggregation Pulls One Over on Pittsburg Bunch

John "Scissors" McIlvaine's Charleroi Independent team was too much for the Pittsburg Lyceum aggregation Saturday and the result was that the visitors went home feeling decidly putout. The score was 12 to 4. One thing wrong was that McIlvaine's cohorts got too many hits to please the other folks. Thirteen was the number. Errors were not so promiscuous but they were frequent enough to help along matters somewhat.

J. Mason and Guder scored in first inning. Playing the game at all times and taking advantage of the visitors misplays aided considerably. McIlvaine astonished everybody by getting a start on his batting average in the second and subsequently scored. Vernom also scored. Haywood got a three baser in the third and scored on an error, then Charles Mason got a base, stole second and went third on an error, scoring on an out. J. Mason and Guder again got two in the fourth Four hits was the reason. Four runs completed the base running in the eighth. Scores were made then by J. Mason, Guder, Haywood and C. Mason.

The visitors got taree in the fifth on two hits, a base on balls and an error, and one in the ninth on a fielder's

Medicine Man No Like Um Questions So Print Card---Can Sling English Too

Chief Red Wing, of the tribe of Milicetes, and a mighty man in valor from appearances, is attracting attention today at the Piper Bros. pharmacy. The chief is here to advertise some kind of medicine, and not to answer questions, thank you. There's nothing but pure Milicetes Indian blood coursing through the veins of Chief Red Wing. He came from Maine and has been old enough to vote since three years back. He can sling the English lingo like a baseball writer and can speil the Indian talk enough to make other big chiefs sit up and take notice. Yet he did not graduate at Carlisle Indian school. The chief has a printed sign which he will show to anyone for information, but he's strictly business-like and truly up-to-date, so he prefers not to talk. He has a good display of beads, saddles and other Indian curios.

KIRK AND CLARK HAVE BIG SALE

Kirk & Clark's sale of the Ryan bankrupt stock, which opened Saturday, was a record breaker. This popular department store has had some big sales in the past but Saturday's record surpassed them all and the store did the largest single day's business in its history. Forty-two sale girls were employed and even this large force was overwhelmed at times in trying to take care of the crowds of patrons who had been attracted to the sale. A big white sale starts Wednesday.

COUNCIL TO OPEN BIDS FOR NEW KIND OF TREES

Important Matters to be Considerd at Meeting Tonight

CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED

Citizens Asked to be Present --Business Men's Association Has Committee

Council will hold a special meeting tonight to consider among other things a number of bids from nursery firms for furnishing trees to people here to replace Carolina poplars. In this work council will co-operate with a committee consisting of W. D. Pollock and William Kirk, appointed from the Business Men's Association. Citizens are invited to attend the meeting.

It was stated some time ago that trees of a different kind from the sewer-destroying Carolina poplars could be secured at half or less than half the retail price, if purchased in bulk. Accordingly bids have been received on different kinds of trees. Other towns where it has been necessary to dig out the Carolina poplars and replace with another kind, have found the Norway Pine a good tree and have largely adopted it.

The Play Grounds Committee has selected a man for the position of instructor and council will be asked to ratify the choice tonight. Other important business is expected to come up.

Suffering From Hot Weather

Shade Trees Popular on Sunday---Mercury Rises to Lofty Position

People sweltered yesterday from the heat, and after the majority had attended church services the balance of the day was spent in an endeavor to keep cool. Hundreds flocked to Eldora park, where leafy shade and cool breezes afforded a delightful retreat. Others sought various shady retreats or tried to tolerate the temperature in their homes by sitting on the back stoop minus superfluous clothing, and shifting to the front veranda and vice versa as Old Sol moved onward in his course, shedding his piercing rays on the righteous and unrighteous alike. Soda fountains and ice cream establishments helped to make existence more tolerable, while the constant creaking of pump handles in the resident districts told of the thirst that was other than alcoholic.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Tomorrow the business and social world takes a holiday in memory of the soldier dead of the nation. To some it is a day of solemn import, fraught with sad memories and tender recollections; to others—and the great majority, perhaps—it is a day for care free, holiday recreation, in which the sentimet that inspires the observance has little part. This however, should not detract from the holiday, as it is the province of human nature to rejoice, rather than to mourn.

With due respect to the solemnity of the occasion, it is not sacriligious for the people who take a holiday on Memorial Day to devote their leisure to pleasure and recreation. There is duty to the living as well as to the dead, and it was the joyous, happy young manhood of half a century ago that marched to the front and arrayed themselves in line of battle in defence of Old Glory in upholding the cause of human rights. The joyous freedom which had been the life of the people was the inspiration of the patriotism that flamed up when National existence was threatened. It is today the basic motive of patriotism, and to smother this sentiment is to breed discontent, rebellion and anarchy.

Therefore in the interests of patriotism, love of home, country and National honor, let all who can enjoy the Memorial Day holiday, keeping in mind the tribute of respect paid the heroes who stood in the breach when their services were needed to preserve the liberties we enjoy today.

HAS MADE GOOD.

Pennsylvania has now had more than four months of Governor John K. Tener. By his work in that period he must be judged. He has gone through what is certain to be the severest test of his administration and no fair man or women either will charge that he has not been faithful to his every trust and that he has not made good in every particular.

Governor Tener did not get all he wanted from the Legislature just adjourned last week. He had made pledges to get some few things which he was unable to get. He fought to the last ditch for the redemption of all his pledges. He forced from the Legislature enough to convince his critics that he was deadly in earnest in his every effort and that the unredeemed pledges simply mark defeats which were more painful to him personally than to his constituents.

The Republican party in Pennsylvania has made good to the people by electing Governir Tener and Governor Tener has made good to the people by acting as their servant and endeavoring to give to the people what he earnestly believed they wanted.

There will be comparatively little State politics for many months. During the political recess the firm determination of Governor Tener to redeem all his campaign pledges will be apparent to all the people and his traducers should hide their heads in shame. The Republican party of Pennsylvania was never in better shape than it is today, and Governor Tener is one of its most substantial props.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Days of heart-rending suffering, nights of ceasless vigil to ever be in preparation for the enemy's advances battles in which thousands were killed and wounded, hasty marches participated in by a heavy moving army, and ever recurring instances of hard army life, are described in the diary of Thomas H. Cline, of Brownsville, a survivor of the 85th Regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, which fought nobly during practically the entire Civil War. The diary is now owned and highly treasured by a daughter of Mr. Cline, who is still living at Brownsville. It is probably the only narrative in existance kept by a surviving member of the company.

Enlisting in Capt. Wilkinson's company known as Company C, September 11, 1861, Private Cline served until August, 1864, when he sustained a grievous wound in his hand. Being taken to a hospital in Philadelphia he remained there for months, complications developing from the wound, which was feared would cause his death. Early in the spring of 1865, when he was discharged from the hospital to come home before returning to the seat of war, he learned that the terrible destruction was about over; that the fire of the Confederacy had become extinguished with recent defeats. He never went back, for the war ended while he was recovering from his wound. General Lee surrendered to General Grant and the disrupted republic was again solidly united with the Stars and Stripes still the insignia of freedom.

It looked easy to be a soldier when Private Cline enlisted. Nobody in the Northern states ever thought for a moment that the Confederacy would last but a few weeks. Volunteers were called for and men hastened to the front leaving their sorrowing wives and mothers to get along as best they could. The few weeks dragged into months and the Confederacy still had the then considered bumptious impertinence to exist. It was in the first few months of war, in fact just after the battle of Bull Run, that Private Cline enlisted. According to his diary the company after paying a farewell visit to Brownsville returned to Uniontown and left that place for the seat of war.

Doing nothing practically until the hard winter of 1861 set in the soldiers had an easy life. They were then in McClellan's "Army of the Potomac." One record of January 17, 1862 in Private Cline's diary is: "We were paid off for the first time. Toward the latter part of our stay the weather was ugly. We had seven deaths. All except the waggoners and guards had easy times. We lived in plenty and were comfortable. Made a nice showing."

It was not until about April or May that the company began to see war as war is. Williamsburg was the first fight. This was serious, and a number were injured. An entry of May 24 is as follows: "Moved on a scout under General Nagle. Very wet and muddy pickets. Commenced fighting and were ordered to support a battery which played well upon the enemy. Killed 60 rebels. Several of our men wounded."

May 31 marked the battle of Fair Oaks. Private Cline was preparing his diary when this fight started, as is evidenced by the following: "Parties sent out to slash timber and work redoubt. About now two balls came over our camp. The 103rd went to support the pickets. The rest of us got out in quick time. Rebels drove us back and took possession of our camp. We fell back about two miles. Lost nearly 100 men in all. The enemy checked."

Next day the tide turned and the enemy was in turn driven back. The entry for June 1 is: "Our men renewed the attack, drove the enemy and took back the old ground. The regiment at work on rifle pits. In afternoon moved back and camped near the cross roads. A panic at night. A funny time." At the battle of Fair Oaks the Federal army was surprised. Partly in desperation to recover these they did some of the best fighting on the second day of the battle.

Nearly every day after the Battle of Fair Oaks during the next few months there was fighting. The next winter the soldiers had it hard. On Christmas Day, 1862 the following entry tells conditions: "Christmas. Had nothing for breakfast. About noon secured some bread and beef and had a feast."

The first of 1863 the company was in very little hard fighting. In July there were some serious engagements. An entry of July 18 follows: "The monitors and ironside engaged the enemy. Our infantry made assault on Fort Wagner. Were repulsed with heavy loss." Part of the entry for the following day is: "The day was spent in bringing in the dead and dying and the less wounded from Provost Guard." This was in North Carolina. An enty of August 22 is: "Had inspection in the morning. The regiment went to the front in the evening. Two men killed and several wounded of the regiment. I was shocked by a shot from Wagner. Had to come to camp." September 5, the diary reads: "There were 100 men detained from our regiment, 100 from the 100th New York Volunteers and 100 from the third Massachusetts Volunteers to charge Battery Gregg and spike her guns. The night was clear and the expedition failed." On September 7 both Fort Gregg and Fort Wagner were taken.

The final entry is December 22, 1863. It is: "Went on guard in the morning." During the following months until he was injured Private Cline was in the midst of some of the hardest fighting ever engaged in by the Army of the Potomac. At Deep Bottom on August 14 while in the front rank and center of the army he was wounded. By this time the ranks of Company C had been depleted until the total number in it was 30. At Deep Bottom, directly facing the enemy it got the full force of the firing. Few men came out whole from the engagement.

MUSICAL MOUNTAINS.

Singing Cliffs In the Pyrenees and Roaring Sands In Hawaii.

In certain parts of the world are mountains and hills which are said by the natives to sing. In the Pyrenees certain cliffs emit plaintive sounds resembling the strains of a harp. Two other cliffs in the same chain are called the "snorers." When the wind is in the southwest they send forth a peculiar sound not altogether musical. The faces of these cliffs are marked by deep gullies, open in front, which may be compared to the pipes of an organ. At certain times a stratum of air, held between the cliffs and bordering trees, closes the openings while the wind blows freely between through the gullies, or organ pipes, behind; hence the music that is heard.

At the confluence of the Orinoco and the Rio Meta are granite cliffs which sing at sunrise. Humboldt refers to the phenomenon as the musical stones of the Orinoco. The music is caused by the rush of the expanding air through fissures partly closed by mica.

Many more examples might be cited to show that nature makes use of principles which have been adopted by man in the creation of musical sounds. Nor are the musical sounds of nature confined to rocks, mountains and hills, for in Hawaii is a sand bank fifty feet high which, when the hand is moved about in the loose sand, produces a sound like that of a melodeon. It is said that if the observer slides down the bank on his back, dragging both hands in the sand, the sound becomes as loud as faint thunder.—Harper's Weekly.

AN ILL MATED PAIR.

Wide Apart In Temperament Were Thomas and Jane Carlyle.

That the Carlyles were an ill assorted couple no one could deny. She was a highly strung, nervous woman, very quick, able and impatient, disappointed with her married life and her position, jealous of the admiration which Carlyle received at the hands of all his admirers, especially of one or two women, whom she found very unsympathetic.

That Carlyle adored her there is little doubt. He loved her with all the rough, passionate power of his nature, but he was a peasant in manner and character and lacking in all the little outward signs of devotion and affection which so many women exact and the absence of which they resent most bitterly.

Mrs. Carlyle found herself tied to an irritable genius who, sensitive at every point, deeply devoted to her, but absolutely incapable of translating that love into the language which she craved and longed for. I remember her once saying to me in a bitter way, "My dear, whatever you do, never marry a philosopher," and that was the key to the enigma—the woman always hungering for proofs of the devotion in which the whole of her daily life was wanting.—From Lady St. Heller's "Memories."

Physiognomy Not Reliable.

I am a profound disbeliever in physiognomy. Features are false witnesses. Stupidity frequently wears a mask of intelligence. I know business men who look like poets and poets who look like business men. Men of genius invariably look like idiots, and if you pick out the man who looks most eminent in a party you are sure to find he is a nobody. I always distrust men who look magnificent. Nature is a stingy creature. She seldom gives a man the double gift of being great and looking great. She took care to lame Byron and deform Pope and disfigure Johnson. But the crowning example of her jealous parsimony is Shakespeare. I have always been disappointed with Shakespeare's face. It does not live up to his poetry. It is dull, heavy and commonplace.—P

Meteoric Showers.

How many know that the earth is getting larger each year from the fall of meteoric matter on its surface and that such matter is of no small weight? One hundred tons a day is the estimate made by Young. This, he says, would make a layer one inch thick over the entire earth in 1,000,000,000 years if we assume this meteoric matter to be three times as heavy as water. But another effect has to take place at the same time. As the earth is getting larger the force of gravity gets larger, and we are being attracted with more force toward the sun. But the centrifugal force keeping us away from the sun gets much greater, too, and, in fact, more so than the sun's gravity, the result being that we are gradually increasing our distance from the glowing orb.—New York Tribune.

A Crazy Spell.

The opera was "Trovatore."

Though I no more may hold thee,
Yet is thy name a spell,

sang the basso to the prima donna. And it was. Her name was Sophronia Czechlinskiwicz.—Judge's Library.

Stung!

"I would like to exchange this five dollar opera bag for a five dollar chafing dish."

"Sorry, miss, but those opera bags have been marked down to $3.98."—Washington Herald.

The Peculiar Sand Fly.

The sand fly is perfectly harmless. It does not bite. It has no sting. It cannot even eat. All it can do is to flit about for a few hours, enjoy the light of day or the glare of an electric lamp. The sand fly is known to scientists familiarly as the May fly. In scientific terms it is called ephemerida. This name is taken from the Greek word ephemeros, which means lasting only for a day. To the scientists the sand fly is one of the most interesting and beautiful of insects. The fly lives but a day at most, but before it sees the light it has lived from one to three years under the water in the form of what the scientists call a nymph. The nymph can both walk and swim. As it grows it molts, and after about the ninth molt tiny wings appear on its thorax. These grow larger until the insect comes forth from the water a sand fly. It then has but one duty—to lay its eggs. This done, the sand fly zigzags through the air until its brief life is ended.

Not In That Class.

A Cleveland young woman has a ten-year-old brother who is wise beyond his years and is likely to crop out in new places at the most unexpected times. The other night the anxious suitor called on his inamorata, arriving at her domicile a little before he was expected. She was not ready to make her appearance, and the duty of entertaining the caller devolved upon the little brother.

"Well, Bobby," began the young man in an effort to make conversation and at the same time to put his involuntary host at his ease, "does your sister think that I am calling at this house oftener than I am welcome?"

The child looked keenly at the caller.

"Nothing doing," he said. "Do you think I'm one of these fresh kids you read about in the funny papers? There ain't going to be no embarrassing answer this time." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Missionary a Puzzle.

To the untutored Chinamen the presence of the missionary is a puzzle. They simply cannot imagine human beings exiling themselves from their native land for the love of men on the other side of the globe. So they frame sundry theories to explain the thing to themselves. One theory is that the missionaries are secret political agents bent on gaining an influence over the Chinese and then swaying them to the advantage of their respective governments. Only of late have the natives come to realize that the strangers are not sent by their governments, but by religious groups. According to another theory, China is so excellent and renowned that the red haired barbarians come to live there for the mere pleasure of it. As for their self denying works of benevolence, these are supposed to be prompted by the desire to acquire merit.—Century.

Force Yourself to Be Well.

"Plant your feet firmly and squarely on the ground, throw back your shoulders, fold your arms and affirm in most emphatic terms that you are strong, healthy and well. Do this for a few minutes every evening, and, even if this is not how you actually feel, maintain by your physical and mental attitude that it is your condition, and you will soon find that it becomes so and that you are not really telling lies." This was the advice given by Dr. J. Stenson Hooker in a lecture on "Posturing and Posing For Health" at the simple life conference and exhibition in London. "It is wonderful to what extent our state of health can be altered in this way," Dr. Hooker added. "It stirs up the currents of feeling which act on the nerves. These act on the blood vessels, and thus the whole system is improved, and we become different beings."

Could, but Would He?

"I have called," said the young man, "to ask for your daughter's hand in marriage."

"Can you support her in the style she has been accustomed to?"

"Yes," answered the young man.

"But will you?" demanded her father, who was already supporting two sons-in-law.—Detroit Free Press

QUAINT MARRIAGE NOTICE.

William Cullen Bryant Broke the News Gently to His Mother.

The following letter from William Cullen Bryant to his mother, quoted by Professor Chubb in "Stories of Authors," indicates that the author of "Thanatopsis" could enjoy his little joke on occasion:

"Dear Mother—I hasten to send you the melancholy intelligence of what has lately happened to me. Early on the evening of the eleventh day of the present month I was at a neighboring house in this village. Several people of both sexes were assembled in one of the apartments, and three or four others, with myself, were in another. At last came in a little elderly gentleman, pale, thin, with a solemn countenance, pleuritic voice, hooked nose and hollow eyes. It was not long before we were summoned to attend in the apartment where he and the rest of the company were gathered. We went in and took our seats. The little elderly gentleman with the hook nose prayed, and we all stood up. When he had finished most of us sat down. The gentleman with the hooked nose then muttered certain cabalistic expressions, which I was too much frightened to remember, but I recollect that at the conclusion I was given to understand that I was married to a young lady of the name of Frances Fairchild, whom I perceived standing by my side and whom I hope in the course of a few months to have the pleasure of introducing to you as your daughter-in-law, which is a matter of some interest to the poor girl, who has neither father nor mother in the world."

SHIELDED THE LADY.

A Tactful Head Waiter Balked an Offensive Hotel Guest.

To illustrate an incident that occurred in a hotel uptown the other night, where, if you are not known, you have to produce some sort of patent of absolute respectability, construct a rectangle, lettering the imaginary diagonal corners A, B, C and D:

A represents a solitary male person dining. B represents a comely person of the opposite sex seated at another table with a party. C represents a head waiter and D a group of the unemployed waiters. Let the line AB represent an admiring look that travels continuously. BA represents a look of annoyance. CA and CB are comprehending glances directed by the head waiter.

The point C moves toward D, making a triangle. After a whispered direction a figure which may be termed O, because it represents a particularly rotund waiter, moves from the point D until it reaches a point on the line AB. O moves back to position.

A finds that his ogle stops at O, which he cannot see through, and calls O to take an order. Thereupon C motions toward D, when another waiter, traveling on the line DA, effects a junction with A and goes off at a tangent. A cranes his neck, stretching to one side or the other, but it cannot get past O. The result is that A finally sees what is up, finishes his coffee in sheepish disgust and leaves the room. —New York Sun.

Astrology With Risks.

Formerly they had rough and ready modes of testing claims to supernatural powers.

"Dost thou know where thou wilt pass Christmas?" asked Henry VII. of an astrologer. He could not tell.

Whereupon the king's grace, which did love a merry jest, made answer, "Then I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou wilt spend Christmas in prison."

John Galeazzo, duke of Milan, is said to have made even merrier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early.

"And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the prophet.

"My lord, my star promises me a long life."

"Never trust to your star, man; you are to be hanged today," and the duke took care that his own prediction should be fulfilled.

Killing One Fly.

Every fly begins as an egg deposited in some kind of organic filth. It hatches into a tiny maggot within a few hours, begins to feed and grow, completes its growth and comes out as a perfect fly in possibly ten days. It then requires at least fourteen days to mature its first batch of eggs, and it may live to mature and deposit at least six layings, of from 120 to 150 eggs each. This means that in killing one fly we may be preventing the hatching of nearly a thousand others.—Youth's Companion.

Two Kinds of Curiosity.

Philanthropic Visitor (to jailbird)—My friend, may I ask what it was that brought you here? Jailbird—The very same thing that brought you here—the desire to poke my nose into other people's business, only I used generally to go in by way of the basement window.—Exchange.

Mean.

Miss Mugley—I always try to retire before midnight. I don't like to miss my beauty sleep. Miss Pepprey—You really should try harder. You certainly don't get enough of it.

Two Sides.

Willis—Why don't you go to church? Gillis—Too far. Why don't you go? Willis—We live next door to one, and I hate to get all dressed up just to go that little way.—Puck.

By the work one knows the workmen.—La Fontaine.

BASEBALL BINGLES

Urban got his ankle badly turned Saturday in the fouth when he slid into second.

Haywood, a brother of Pete Haywood, had a batting average of 800. My, but he can hit.

"Scissors" McIlvaine got his second hit of the season Saturday. He was much elated over the fact and may have himself at the head of the batting list.

There wasn't the least shadow of a doubt but what the matter was that Charleroi was too fast for the Lyceum.

BIG CHOIR PICNICS AT LOCAL PARK

evening crowd that had begun to congregate.

The Mendelsohn Male Choir, which is at the head of all musical organizations in Pittsburg, is composed of the best professional singers of the various church choirs of Pittsburg. These are highly trained as a separate organization, and several times a year they give concerts in company with some of the leading orchestras of the country, such as Damrosch, the Boston Symphony and other leading musical organizations. C. J. Braun, Jr., is president of the choir, Ernest Lunt conductor, and C. W. McGhee, secretary and treasurer. The company and their guests were highly pleased with the outing, and voted Eldora Park a most enjoyable resort.

How He Got the Moon.

John Henry Maedler, the astronomer, whose favorite study was the moon, having learned that Frau Witte, the wife of the state councilor, owned a wonderful model of his pet luminary, spent years trying to gain possession of it. As her husband was living, he could not marry the owner of the model, so he married her daughter, and at the death of his mother-in-law the coveted moon became his.

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade, Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty-third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier. "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades. At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground.

"'Here, corporal,' said he; 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

The Bishop's Opinion.

"The late Bishop Whitaker," said a Philadelphia clergyman, "had very little sympathy with ultra high church leaning. A young divine once said to him at a Lenten lecture, 'Bishop, suppose I should burn a few pastilles during the service, do you think anything would happen?'

"Bishop Whitaker smiled dryly, and, passing his hand down his white beard, he answered:

"'A good deal would happen, my young friend. Your congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and it's more than likely that you yourself would go up in smoke.'"

The Family Cat.

"Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a redhot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."
